

— About

Internetbar.org Institute (IBO) was founded to be a bar organization for the Internet. Traditionally, bar associations connect, educate and define professional standards for those who are members (lawyers). Because the Internet is global and involves a multi-faceted set of participants, all contributing to the normative behavior of online interaction, IBO includes anyone - activist, lawyer, technologist, advocate, student, entrepreneur - who wants to be a part of making the Justice Layer become a reality through education, prevention, access to tools, and empowerment of the individual in the justice system through arts and culture.

Build the Justice Layer of the Internet —

as a community of equals

2017-
2018

Principles

- Eradicate poverty by promoting peace and justice around the globe through the use of technology to create access to justice and peaceful economic development
- Use accessible technology platforms to create a trusted online community where participants play the leading role in establishing norms
- Foster a community that will implement rule of law which links the governed to those who make and enforce laws by empowering citizen stakeholders to help create a system of applicable rules and enforceable rights

Projects

- JusticeHub is a social network designed to aid the identification, prevention, mitigation, and solving of justice issues that affect our communities
- The Invisibles aims to reconstruct the lost identities of refugees and other people without adequate documentation into accountable digital identities that make use of blockchain and financial technology
- National ODR helps legal aid nationwide utilize its trusted position in the legal marketplace to gain substantial earnings by delivering low cost preventive online dispute resolution services to many of the millions of its unique visitors to legal aid websites and call centers
- PeaceTones brings crucial skills to historically unheard musicians, thereby enabling them to develop and disseminate their art and empowering them as shapers of positive social change

+ Benefits

- Courses and webinars on becoming a player in the changing landscape of lawyers' roles in the era of blockchain, globalization, and open world environments
- Podcasts and articles with a focus on training and certifying competencies in the use of technologies used in increasing access to justice, including ODR, blockchain, and virtual currencies
- Meetups, networking, and events including hackathons in several cities and towns around the world as well as virtual meetings
- Access to JusticeHub.tools
- Access to legal technologies (online dispute resolution, security software, and others) that make running your law office easy
- PeaceTones music and merchandise, including exclusives
- Advertise your firm and/or software to the IBO community
- Post volunteer, internship, and job opportunities
- Pro bono and philanthropy opportunities
- Mentoring opportunities

As a bar organization for all committed to access to justice work on both the grassroots and policy levels, IBO relies on membership dues, sponsors and donors to help us develop, implement and scale our projects. IBO members are an integral part of our ongoing work, not only financially, but also as active partners in our initiatives.
